WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Navy and coast guard craft today toward a mid-Atlantic rendezvous with the American liner Iroquois, after the White House disclosed receipt of startling information that the refugee-laden steamship was to be sunk.The tip came from the head of the German navy, but it left unanswered the question of how and why and by whom the sinking was to be done. Likewise, it offered no explanation of how the reich acquired the information.Judge H. W. Hammond

BY AGRICULTURE
LEADER OCT. 25Northeastern Ohio Poul-

OF ASSOCIATIONPlans Progressing For Salem Poultry Show
In NovemberState Director of Agriculture
John T. Brown will be the speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Northeastern Ohio Poultry association at Columbiana Wednesday night, Oct. 25.This announcement was made last night at a meeting of committees planning the Ohio-National Poultry show which is to be held in Salem Nov. 22 to 26.

Expect 250 Reservations

Members of the association and guests will attend. Reservations are expected to be limited to 250. The dinner will be served at 7, it was announced by C. F. Moser, manager of the poultry organization.The Ohio-National Poultry show here in November is expected to be one of the largest poultry exhibits ever held in this part of the state.
It was indicated at last night's meeting of Columbiana and Mahoning county committees which aided the recent World's Poultry Congress.Floyd Lower, Columbiana county agriculture extension agent, presided at the meeting, which also was attended by J. C. Hedge, Mahoning county agent.The group decided that when a producers' meeting is held Friday night, Nov. 24, during the course of the poultry show, a committee would be named to begin early planning for an even larger event here in 1940.

Bantam Society Helps

At present, however, plans are going forward to make next month's show one of the largest ever held in this area. The Ohio Valley Bantam society, which has a national membership, is giving financial backing to the exhibit and has indicated that 1,500 bantams alone will be shown. The bantams, however, will be only a part of the show.Poultrymen throughout the district are expected to place their prize birds on exhibit. Ringside judging by department of agriculture experts will be held for the benefit of producers. Prizes, too, will be awarded in the various bird classes.

Worried, No Doubt,
But Not Dead, Says
Salem Grid CoachIt's common practice for football coaches to worry on the eve of an important game. But seldom, if ever, does the coach worrying prove fatal.Coach Carl F. Schroeder might have died a thousand figurative deaths while worrying over the chances of his Salem High school football team against East Liverpool's Potters tonight, but the Quaker grid mentor is still alive, despite reports to the contrary which circulated in East Liverpool today.Rumors that Schroeder had died and the Salem-East Liverpool game would be cancelled this morning, an East Liverpool sports writer called The News, inquiring as to the cause of Schroeder's death. He was promptly informed that Schroeder was very much alive and doing business at the same old stand.When told of his sad fate, Schroeder laughed it off with the comment, "I'm not dead yet, but maybe the Salem fans will want to kill me if we don't win tonight."

Mother Dies After Baby Is Born In Iron Lung

The six-and-a-half-pound baby girl being held, left above, by a nurse, was born to Mrs. Gertrude Epstein, 22, pictured right above, after she had used an "iron lung" respirator in a Chicago hospital. After her husband took Mrs. Epstein to the hospital, her respiration became labored and physicians determined she was suffering from poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis). A breast-plate respirator used by Fred B. Snite, Jr., famed Chicago infantile paralysis sufferer, was loaned by the Snites and rushed to the hospital. The baby, according to obstetricians, is perfectly normal and healthy.

He Has Made
His Last OfferIf "Outstretched Hands" Is Rejected, "Then We Shall Fight", He Warns

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Adolf Hitler today proposed a European peace settlement "on a comprehensive basis," but added that if the Allies rejected his "outstretched hand" this statement "will have been my last.""Then we shall fight," he went on, and pictured the new war as one sure to bring unprecedented horror to the world.
"May those peoples and their leaders who are of the same mind (as himself) now make their reply," he said in his hour and 20-minute speech to the reichstag and the world."And let those who consider war to be the better solution reject my outstretched hand."He challenged the Allies to "interpret these opinions of mine as cowardice if they like.""I need not occupy myself with what they think; I make these statements simply because it goes without saying that I wish to spare my own people this suffering."The fuhrer was time and again conciliatory in tone—specifically to both Britain and France.

Renounces Further Territorial Claims

These were among the other most material phases of his speech:1. A renunciation of further territorial claims, save for his old colonial demands.2. A declaration that Germany and Soviet Russia together would "relieve one of the acute danger spots of Europe" by working for a peace zone in eastern Europe.3. A specific assurance to the world that he had no designs on Rumania, the Ukraine, the Urals or Denmark and an expression that in eastern Europe generally, and Scandinavia as well, his interests were wholly economic.4. A declaration that one of Germany's tasks in dealing with fallen Poland was the establishment of a "new order of ethnographic conditions, that is to say, resettlement of nationalities"—and a further declaration that it was a problem not restricted "to this particular sphere but a task with far wider implications, for the east and south of Europe is to a large extent filled with splinters of German nationality, whose existence cannot be maintained."Saying that if the present war was allowed to go on the "vigor of every nation would be sapped on the battlefields," Hitler added it would be a struggle in which there are no longer any islands—an obvious reference to Britain's vulnerability to air attack.Such a war, carried to the end, he added, would leave a frontier of "ruins and endless graves" between Germany and France.Hitler coupled his suggestion for a general attempt to solve Europe's problems with a declaration that it could not be done "while canons are thundering or mobilized armies are bringing pressure to bear upon it.""If these problems must be solved sooner or later," he said, "then it would be more sensible to tackle their solution before millions of men are first uselessly sent to death and billions in riches are destroyed."

Speaks of "Guaranteed World Peace"

A continuation of the present state of affairs in the west is unthinkable. Each day will soon demand increasing sacrifices."He introduced the subject of a peace conference by saying that the "most important condition" for a "real revival of economic life in and outside of Europe is the establishment of unconditionally guaranteed peace and of a sense of security on the part of individual nations.""This security," he added, "will not only be rendered possible by a final sanctioning of the European status, but above all by a reduction of armaments to a reasonable and economically tolerable level.""I believe, however, that a sense of national security will not return to Europe until clear and binding international agreements have provided a comprehensive definition of the legitimate and illegitimate use of armaments."

"To achieve this great end the leading nations of this continent will one day have to come together in order to draw up, accept and guarantee a statute on a comprehensive basis which will insure for them all a sense of security, of calm, in short of peace.""Mr. Churchill (Britain's first lord of the admiralty) and his companions may interpret these opinions of mine as weakness or cowardice if they like. I need not occupy myself with what they think; I make these statements simply because it goes without saying that I wish to spare my own people this suffering.""If, however, the opinions of Messrs. Churchill and followers shall prevail, this statement will have been my last. Then we shall fight. Neither force of arms nor lapse of time will conquer Germany. There never will be another November, 1918, in German history. It is infantile to hope for the disintegration of our people."

Hitler Feels Sure Nazis Will Win

litical creeds, National Socialist Germany sees no reason why it should adopt another criterion.
"Germany and Russia together will relieve one of the acute danger spots of Europe of its threatening character and will each, in her own sphere, contribute to the welfare of people living there, thus aiding European peace in general."Says Britain Against Nazis He asserted that the greatest boon for Europe would be a British-German understanding but that Britain had worked against German interests while Germany never had crossed Britain's path.At length he attempted to draw a picture of how France and Great Britain can have peace if they want it.He said they could have it in the name of all peoples but not in the name of Jewish agitators.The fuhrer asked the world a question which Nazis frequently have posed recently:

"Why is there war in the west?"

PROBABILITIES

Everything now indicates the first turning point in the war has been reached. It must veer in one of two directions. Probabilities strongly favor one of them.

If something comes of the truce proposal being made by Germany, with the connivance of Russia and Italy, the war will do no more than revert to its pre-war status. That is to say, a heavily armed peace will be resumed, pending a further outbreak of militarism. It is hard to see how agreement to a truce would settle anything; it would be only a postponement of some more definitive settlement, which might be revolution in Germany.

In the other direction lies war—not the desultory war of the period now ending, but desperate aggression on Germany's part against desperate Allied defense. Strategists agree the Allies should let Germany take the offensive, to spend its strength and to force it to incur the moral stigma of initiating invasion. This is the only kind of war Germany could win, and the kind it is most likely to attempt.

Contrary to common expectation, it must be regarded as the probability. Truce is possible; war is probable. The hard facts of the situation—Allied determination to force a showdown and Adolf Hitler's militancy—seem to predetermine a violent shattering of Europe's deadlock in power politics. Terms of a truce can be imagined only with extreme effort. Genuine peace cannot be imagined at all, barring some new unforeseen development. Intensification of war seems almost certain at the end of the first month of declared hostility.

ABC'S IN THE OLD KENTUCKY HOME

It's a welcome change to hear about power politics American style for a change. A fellow easily forgets how much it means to him to be assured that things at home are still normal.

One of the hot spots of the political New Deal has been Kentucky. The boys have been a-fuddin' down there.

Mr. Roosevelt went out of his way a year ago to see that Gov. Albert B. (Happy) Chandler—the ABC of Kentucky politics—got shot down on his way to the senate. "Dear Alben" Barkley, majority leader and Mr. Roosevelt's right-hand man, was re-elected by request.

The Chandlers weren't happy about the whole thing, or any part of it. They probably swore to get revenge. Then fate paled into their hands. Sen. Marvin M. Logan, right-hand man to President Roosevelt's right-hand man, died suddenly.

"Happy" Chandler was still governor. His man, Keen Johnson, was the nominee for the next contest, which meant he soon would be governor. So Johnson is going to become governor ahead of time so he can appoint Chandler to the senate. Who said power politics was something they do over in Europe?

A REASONABLE COMPLAINT

Cincinnati may win the world series yet. That was about the most comforting remark an Ohioan could make after the Reds lost that first heart-breaking game, 2 to 1.

The New York Yankees seem to be in a conspiracy to keep Buckeye ball fans from getting what's coming to them. Year after year they wreck the ambitions of the Cleveland Indians, just as they're favored to wreck the ambitions of the Reds in the next few days.

In fact, the Yankees are a great disappointment. Ohioans are deeply annoyed by their bad habit of nearly always getting at least one more run than their opponents. It's high time something was done about it.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, October 7

A CONDITION of mixed influences is noted in this day's astrological setup. There are predictions of happiness, success, promotion and fulfilled ambitions, both in business and private affiliations. But at the same time there are indications of stubborn obstacles, frustrations, delays and disappointments, and there is a danger of aggravating this adverse situation by reckless, quarrelsome and impetuous conduct. There is also a menace through papers, writings, trickery and fraud. With restraint, precaution and sagacity, there is prospect of an outstanding stroke of good fortune and a great sentimental pleasure.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured that the successful culmination of events rests in their own individual hands, as there is definite opportunity for advancement, fulfilled ambitions and personal gratification. However, these may be negated by impetuosity, quarrels, rash acts and by carelessness in handling papers or documents. Indomitable will and sound acumen must be brought to bear on this frustrating situation. High romance may be an incentive for such resolute behavior.

A child born on this day may be ardent, impetuous, wayward, perverse and indomitable, but also generous, extravagant and popular. Early training might iron out such conflicts of a truly noble nature.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Herr Hitler's peace proposals call for a general conference which would deal broadly with all Europe's political and economic ills and also would provide for a measure of disarmament.

There were conciliatory touches in his long speech, delivered before the reichstag today.

The most notable was his declaration that his proposed conference must not be held under a threat of force—presumably an answer to the Anglo-French refusal to consider terms accompanied by threats.

Again the fuhrer made a sweeping renunciation of any further territorial claims, excepting for his old colonial demands. And he said the colonial claims weren't made in the form of an ultimatum but were based on political justice.

In fact, Hitler said his interests in both eastern Europe and Scandinavia were wholly economic.

On the whole it appeared that he was striving, without giving way on any vital points, to present a program which might attract favorable attention.

His peace proposals would seem to be sweeping enough so that they would call for full consideration of the Anglo-French brotherhood were it not for the fact that he leaves unanswered several fundamental points on which the Allies have taken what they claim to be irrevocable stands. These briefly are:

1. That they will not make peace while German troops occupy Poland, and that Poland must be restored.

2. That they will no longer accept the unsupported word of the Nazi government.

3. That they will not cease war until they have "crushed Hitlerism"—a declaration which some observers have thought took in a good deal of territory, to say the least.

As regards Poland, Hitler asserted firmly that the Poland of the Versailles treaty can't be reconstructed. Indeed, he declared that Germany and Russia alone will determine what Poland is to become.

He proposed as a concession, that there be established a Polish state with boundaries which shall "do justice to historical ethnological and economic facts."

If Hitler has said his last word (and that is what he said), it is patent that the Allies can find no basis in his proposals for a conference—unless they are prepared to back water, and a lot of it.

We are now approaching the time of year when the doctor changes his diagnosis from "hay fever" to "sinusitis."

Now all we need is a Maginot line, a balloon barrage and a blackout of the city to make ready for the coming of the New York Yankees, a Cincinnati says.

Football's Injury Toll Discussed By Clendening

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE ROSTER of football injuries is bound to begin to be compiled now. I still think that football, as it has developed in America, is the stupidest and most boring game to watch, and the most dangerous, least skillful and least remunerative game for the player. But I have been saying that for several years, and I am regularly voted down as an old fogy, so I suppose I must make the most of it and try to express warnings that may save some suffering.

The football coaches and athletic directors for a long time ignored the demands for safer football.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

but were finally driven to admit about eight years ago that there was something in such a plan. At the American Football Coaches Association meeting in New York in December, 1931, they announced that they would prepare a report to be published about a year "after all the furore had ceased."

A good many reforms have been undertaken since then, and the emphasis for precautionary measures has been placed squarely on the secondary schools. Most of the injuries and deaths occur in high school football on account of finances.

Lack Equipment Too many such teams allow the young players to go into the game without adequate protective equipment. The younger the player, the more protection he needs, but this rule is not followed out in high school football on account of finances.

Most serious football injuries occur, not in big games, but in practice or scrimmage and in sandlot games. Parents, coaches and all others in authority should emphasize that no practice game or practice scrimmage is too trivial to forego the use of protective headgear, shoulder pads, etc.

It seems incredible that after all the warnings and disseminated knowledge on the subject, so many cases of infection and blood poisoning are reported following minor injuries, mere abrasions of the skin. These are neglected by coach, player and his family. It is the business of the coach to see that such cases are uncovered, not wait for them to be brought to him. One minute's inspection of hands, feet and skin would be sufficient to spot any abrasions or cuts.

Proper Examination

Another cause is insufficient physical examination before the candidate is allowed to play. The question of injury to the heart from athletics is well summarized from an enormous experience by Dr. R. French commentators said Hitler had attempted to induce all other powers to bow "to every injunction and every desire" of Germany.

First members of congress to comment in Washington indicated Hitler's speech won no support from them. His speech was called the "plea of a guilty soul" by Senator Herring (D-La.) and an attempt "to frighten Britain and France into peace on German terms" by Senator Capper (R-Kan.)

PROBABILITIES

Everything now indicates the first turning point in the war has been reached. It must veer in one of two directions. Probabilities strongly favor one of them.

If something comes of the truce proposal being made by Germany, with the connivance of Russia and Italy, the war will do no more than revert to its pre-war status. That is to say, a heavily armed peace will be resumed, pending a further outbreak of militarism. It is hard to see how agreement to a truce would settle anything; it would be only a postponement of some more definitive settlement, which might be revolution in Germany.

In the other direction lies war—not the desultory war of the period now ending, but desperate aggression on Germany's part against desperate Allied defense. Strategists agree the Allies should let Germany take the offensive, to spend its strength and to force it to incur the moral stigma of initiating invasion. This is the only kind of war Germany could win, and the kind it is most likely to attempt.

Contrary to common expectation, it must be regarded as the probability. Truce is possible; war is probable. The hard facts of the situation—Allied determination to force a showdown and Adolf Hitler's militancy—seem to predetermine a violent shattering of Europe's deadlock in power politics. Terms of a truce can be imagined only with extreme effort. Genuine peace cannot be imagined at all, barring some new unforeseen development. Intensification of war seems almost certain at the end of the first month of declared hostility.

ABC'S IN THE OLD KENTUCKY HOME

It's a welcome change to hear about power politics American style for a change. A fellow easily forgets how much it means to him to be assured that things at home are still normal.

One of the hot spots of the political New Deal has been Kentucky. The boys have been a-fuddin' down there.

Mr. Roosevelt went out of his way a year ago to see that Gov. Albert B. (Happy) Chandler—the ABC of Kentucky politics—got shot down on his way to the senate. "Dear Alben" Barkley, majority leader and Mr. Roosevelt's right-hand man, was re-elected by request.

The Chandlers weren't happy about the whole thing, or any part of it. They probably swore to get revenge. Then fate played into their hands. Sen. Marvin M. Logan, right-hand man to President Roosevelt's right-hand man, died suddenly.

"Happy" Chandler was still governor. His man, Keen Johnson, was the nominee for the next contest, which meant he soon would be governor. So Johnson is going to become governor ahead of time so he can appoint Chandler to the senate. Who said power politics was something they do over in Europe?

A REASONABLE COMPLAINT

Cincinnati may win the world series yet. That was about the most comforting remark an Ohioan could make after the Reds lost that first heart-breaking game, 2 to 1.

The New York Yankees seem to be in a conspiracy to keep Buckeye ball fans from getting what's coming to them. Year after year they wreck the ambitions of the Cleveland Indians, just as they're favored to wreck the ambitions of the Reds in the next few days.

In fact, the Yankees are a great disappointment. Ohioans are deeply annoyed by their bad habit of nearly always getting at least one more run than their opponents. It's high time something was done about it.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, October 7

A CONDITION of mixed influences is noted in this day's astrological setup. There are predictions of happiness, success, promotion and fulfilled ambitions, both in business and private affiliations. But at the same time there are indications of stubborn obstacles, frustrations, delays and disappointments, and there is a danger of aggravating this adverse situation by reckless, quarrelsome and impetuous conduct. There is also a menace through papers, writings, trickery and fraud. With restraint, precaution and sagacity, there is prospect of an outstanding stroke of good fortune and a great sentimental pleasure.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured that the successful culmination of events rests in their own individual hands, as there is definite opportunity for advancement, fulfilled ambitions and personal gratification. However, these may be negated by impetuosity, quarrels, rash acts and by carelessness in handling papers or documents. Indomitable will and sound acumen must be brought to bear on this frustrating situation. High romance may be an incentive for such resolute behavior.

A child born on this day may be ardent, impetuous, wayward, perverse and indomitable, but also generous, extravagant and popular. Early training might iron out such conflicts of a truly noble nature.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Herr Hitler's peace proposals call for a general conference which would deal broadly with all Europe's political and economic ills and also would provide for a measure of disarmament.

There were conciliatory touches in his long speech, delivered before the reichstag today.

The most notable was his declaration that his proposed conference must not be held under a threat of force—presumably an answer to the Anglo-French refusal to consider terms accompanied by threats.

Again the fuhrer made a sweeping renunciation of any further territorial claims, excepting for his old colonial demands. And he said the colonial claims weren't made in the form of an ultimatum but were based on political justice.

In fact, Hitler said his interests in both eastern Europe and Scandinavia were wholly economic.

On the whole it appeared that he was striving, without giving way on any vital points, to present a program which might attract favorable attention.

His peace proposals would seem to be sweeping enough so that they would call for full consideration of the Anglo-French brotherhood were it not for the fact that he leaves unanswered several fundamental points on which the Allies have taken what they claim to be irrevocable stands. These briefly are:

1. That they will not make peace while German troops occupy Poland, and that Poland must be restored.

2. That they will no longer accept the unsupported word of the Nazi government.

3. That they will not cease war until they have "crushed Hitlerism"—a declaration which some observers have thought took in a good deal of territory, to say the least.

As regards Poland, Hitler asserted firmly that the Poland of the Versailles treaty can't be reconstructed. Indeed, he declared that Germany and Russia alone will determine what Poland is to become.

He proposed, as a concession, that there be established a Polish state with boundaries which shall "do justice to historical ethnological and economic facts."

If Hitler has said his last word (and that is what he said), it is patent that the Allies can find no basis in his proposals for a conference—unless they are prepared to back water, and a lot of it.

We are now approaching the time of year when the doctor changes his diagnosis from "hay fever" to "sinusitis."

Now all we need is a Maginot line, a balloon barrage and a blackout of the city to make ready for the coming of the New York Yankees, a Cincinnati says.

Football's Injury Toll Discussed By Clendenen

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE ROSTER of football injuries is bound to begin to be compiled now. I still think that football as it has developed in America is the stupidest and most boring game to watch, and the most dangerous, least skillful and least remunerative game for the player. But I have been saying that for several years, and I am regularly voted down as an old fogey, so I suppose I must make the most of it and try to express warnings that may save some suffering.

The football coaches and athletic directors for a long time ignored the demands for safer football.

Dr. Clendenen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

but were finally driven to admit about eight years ago that there was something in such a plan. At the American Football Coaches' Association meeting in New York in December, 1931, they announced that they would prepare a report to be published about a year "after all the furore had ceased."

A good many reforms have been undertaken since then, and the emphasis for precautionary measures has been placed squarely on the secondary schools. Most of the injuries and deaths occur on high school teams.

Lack Equipment Too many such teams allow the young players to go into the game without adequate protective equipment. The younger the player, the more protection he needs, but this rule is not followed out in high school football on account of finances.

Most serious football injuries occur, not in big games, but in practice or scrimmage and in sandlot games. Parents, coaches and all others in authority should emphasize that no practice game or practice scrimmage is too trivial to forego the use of protective headgear, shoulder pads, etc.

It seems incredible that after all the warnings and disseminated knowledge on the subject, so many cases of infection and blood poisoning are reported following minor injuries, mere abrasions of the skin. These are neglected by coach, player and his family. It is the business of the coach to see that such cases are uncovered, not wait for them to be brought to him. One minute's inspection of hands, feet and skin would be sufficient to spot any abrasions or cuts.

Proper Examination Another cause is insufficient physical examination before the candidate is allowed to play. The question of injury to the heart from athletics is well summarized from an enormous experience by Dr. R. Tait Mackenzie, who says that it is seldom following severe athletic competition that one finds any injury to the heart after a week's time, if the heart was originally sound. The last phrase puts classifications. An egg show will be another feature.

The committeemen also voted last night in favor of C. F. Moser's suggestion to hold another poultry school at Columbiana for producers of the district the first three weeks in February. A similar program was staged two years ago. School sessions would be conducted one evening a week for three weeks.

Named to plan for this event are Moser, P. R. Corry and Willard Vaughn, Northeastern Ohio Poultry association members.

The annual poultrymen's meeting also will be held at Columbiana in February. Miss Erma Ramseyer, county home demonstration agent, is assisting in plans for cooking schools at that time.

Hitler Waves Olive Branch; Tells Allies It'll Be Last Chance To Confer On Peace

Poland of the Versailles treaty cannot be reconstructed, Hitler said. What Poland is to become, he declared, will be determined by Germany and by Soviet Russia alone.

Germany and Russia, he explained, are ready to make all sacrifices for the creation of a peace zone in eastern Europe.

Hitler began speaking at 12:03 p. m. (6:03 a. m. E. S. T.).

Of the Polish operations he said, "German armies covered distances and spaces for the achievement of which more than 14 months would have been necessary 25 years ago."

No More Territory

The fuhrer renounced any further claim to territory with the exception of colonies but he said these claims were not made in the form of an ultimatum by force but that the demand was based on political justice.

The fuhrer made more or less specific proposals for the erection of a Polish state provided that it "not be a center of intrigue" against Germany and Russia, and settlement of eastern Europe's minority trouble including some regime for Jews.

His proposed conference, Hitler said, must not be held under a threat of force.

He discussed what he called his practical revision of the Versailles treaty, declaring what he had done was a happy event for all humanity.

He had revised the treaty bloodlessly, he said, with the exception of the last phrase—a reference to the Polish war.

"That the last remnant of the Polish army was able to hold out in Warsaw, Modlin and Hela until October is attributable solely to our cool wisdom and feeling of responsibility," Hitler said.

"I had forbidden the sacrifice of more men than absolutely necessary.... Whatever it was absolutely essential to do was done without regard for sacrifices. What, however, could be avoided was left undone...."

Vain Attempts

"The generalissimo who himself fled in an inglorious manner compelled his country to a resistance which at best had led to its destruction."

(Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz was Polish commander.)

"The city (Warsaw) was converted into a fortress.... the entire population was called upon to participate in the fight."

"Out of pity for women and children I offered those in charge at Warsaw at least to permit the civil population to depart. I offered a truce.... the proud Polish city commandant did not even deign to reply."

"I finally ordered the attack to begin Sept. 25," he said. "It (the city) capitulated with 129,000 men. It did not dare to make a bold sally but preferred to down its arms."

"Now that I am about to give you the number of our dead and wounded," he continued, "I ask you to rise."

Even if this number hardly totals a twentieth part of what we believed at the beginning of the campaign we might have to fear yet let us not forget that every one who here gave his life made the greatest sacrifice that any man can make for his people."

"According to the casualty list of Sept. 30, which will not change materially, total losses for the army, navy and air force, including officers, was the following: 10,572 killed, 30,322 wounded and 3,204 missing."

Discussing Russian relations with Germany, Hitler said:

"The Soviet Union is the Soviet Union Nationalist Germany is Nationalist Germany. But one thing is certain: From the moment when the two states agreed to respect each other's distinctive regime and principles every reason for a mutually hostile attitude has disappeared."

Then he labelled the German-Russian pact of friendship and mutual interest insurance "not only of peace but also of constant, satisfactory cooperation for both states."

Poland of the Versailles treaty cannot be reconstructed, Hitler said. What Poland is to become, he declared, will be determined by Germany and by Soviet Russia alone.

Germany and Russia, he explained, are ready to make all sacrifices for the creation of a peace zone in eastern Europe.

Hitler began speaking at 12:03 p. m. (6:03 a. m. E. S. T.). Of the Polish operations he said, "German armies covered distances and spaces for the achievement of which more than 14 months would have been necessary 25 years ago."

No More Territory
 The fuhrer renounced any further claim to territory with the exception of colonies but he said these claims were not made in the form of an ultimatum by force but that the demand was based on political justice.

The fuhrer made more or less specific proposals for the erection of a Polish state provided that it "not be a center of intrigue" against Germany and Russia, and settlement of eastern Europe's minority trouble, including some regime for Jews.

His proposed conference, Hitler said, must not be held under a threat of force.

He discussed what he called his practical revision of the Versailles treaty, declaring what he had done was a happy event for all humanity.

He had revised the treaty bloodlessly, he said, with the exception of the last phrase—a reference to the Polish war.

"That the last remnant of the Polish army was able to hold out in Warsaw, Modlin and Hela until October is attributable solely to our cool wisdom and feeling of responsibility," Hitler said.

"I had forbidden the sacrifice of more men than absolutely necessary.... Whatever it was absolutely essential to do was done without regard for sacrifices. What, however, could be avoided was left undone...."

Vain Attempts

"The generalissimo who himself fled in an inglorious manner compelled his country to a resistance which at best had to lead to its destruction."

(Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz was Polish commander.)

"The city (Warsaw) was converted into a fortress.... the entire population was called upon to participate in the fight.

"Cut of pity for women and children I offered those in charge at Warsaw at least to permit the civil population to depart. I offered a truce.... the proud Polish city commandant did not even deign to reply."

"I finally ordered the attack to begin Sept. 25," he said. "It (the city) capitulated with 120,000 men. It did not dare to make a bold sally but preferred to down its arms."

"Now that I am about to give you the number of our dead and wounded," he continued, "I ask you to rise."

"Even if this number hardly totals a twentieth part of what we believed at the beginning of the campaign we might have to fear, yet let us not forget that every one who here gave his life made the greatest sacrifice that any man can make for his people."

"According to the casualty list of Sept. 30, which will not change materially, total losses for the army, navy and air force, including officers, was the following: 10,572 killed, 30,322 wounded and 3,404 missing."

Discussing Russian relations with Germany, Hitler said:

"The Soviet Union is the Soviet Union. Nationalist Germany is Nationalist Germany. But one thing is certain: From the moment when the two states agreed to respect each other's distinctive regime and principles, every reason for a mutually hostile attitude has disappeared."

Then he labelled the German-Russian pact of friendship and mutual interest insurance "not only of peace but also of constant, satisfactory cooperation for both states."

UNBEATEN FOOTBALL RIVALS CLASH TONIGHT

CINCY KEEPS UP SPIRIT DESPITE SERIES LOSSES

Reds Show Courage by Insisting to Yankees: "We'll Be Back"

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The Cincinnati Reds are a brave lot of fellows. When they left here last night bound for home and a rematch with the Yankees tomorrow, they were going deliberately: "We'll be back."

A full appreciation of this stout-hearted, devil-may-care attitude can be had only by the 24,000 who sat in Yankee stadium for the past two afternoons and watched the Reds from the west grandstand. The Yankees beat them two of the cruellest beatings ever dealt out by the Yankees to any other club.

Beaten by Red Ruffing, 2 to 1, in the opener, and shut out by Monte Pearson's marvelous two-hit pitching yesterday 4 to 0, the Reds just have been forgiven had they refused to continue the classic unbroken series. They were given a head-start of, say, three runs per game.

McKeech speaks

But in their dressing room and on the cars last night they were grimacing—"we'll be back!"—and Manager Bill McKeech was railing: "Nobody can tell me we are as good a ball club as we've looked the last two days. Tell 'em we're coming home with our heads up."

At that, the Reds cannot be quite so sure, even granting that they are up against almost phenomenal pitching. Few clubs, in any kind of series, ever were mowed down so decisively as they have been for two days.

In two games they have made just six hits, all singles. Only one Red, Ival Gooden, has reached second base, and he scored their only run in the first game after drawing a walk.

When Ernie Lombardi plunked his single to center in the eighth yesterday he broke a string of 12 consecutive innings in which the Reds had failed to scratch any sort of a run and had been retired in order by Ruffing and Pearson.

The crowded stadium was pulling for Pearson to get his no-hitter when Lombardi caught an outside curve squarely on the nose and sent it over second base. After the ball had been broken, it didn't matter so much that Bill Werber caught another hit after two were out in the ninth. Pearson, the 30-year-old veteran from Oakland, Calif., had pitched one of the best games of World Series history.

Fast Ball Effective

The Reds said it was his fast ball, rather than his sweeping curve, that baffled them. He struck out Center Fielder Harry Craft, drew down three times swinging from his heels. For one remarkable throw, through the fourth, fifth and sixth inning, Pearson struck out four batters and tossed three others out at first. On only two plays did he accept a little help from his infield.

Bucky Walters, like Paul Derringer before him, turned in a good game of chucking for the Reds. Of the nine runs pounded by the Yankees five came in the first three innings. Walters struck out five and made only one serious mistake—the fast ball that Babe Dahlgren slipped into the left-field stands in the fourth inning.

It is just like the Yankees that the best hitting regular on their team, Dahlgren, should have been the batting hero of the first two games. In six official times up he has blasted a home run and two doubles, a record that even Lou Gehrig, the man he succeeded at, can't claim might not have bettered.

He drove across the Yankees' tying run in the opening game, scored the first run yesterday after doubling to open the third frame and then hit his four-bagger in the fourth.

Lakers To Face Alliance Champs

Accepting a challenge issued by the Alliance Sunset Parks, Lake Placid's semi-pro baseball team will meet the Sunset nine in a post-season game at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the lake diamond.

The Parks' city champion in Alliance for the last two years, were scheduled to face the Lakers last Sunday, but the game was called on account of rain. The Alliance team immediately challenged Placid to another game.

Willis Schopfer is slated to pitch for the Lakers. He will be opposed by Phillip, the Sunset Park pitching ace, who has won 11 straight games.

As Pearson Pitched Way To Series Fame

Here's Monte Pearson, New York Yankee pitcher, winding up and delivering to a Cincinnati Reds batter that tricky pitch of his which held the Cincinnati Reds hitless for seven innings in the second game of the 1939 world series, played in Yankee stadium, New York. Pearson held the Reds to two hits, the Yankees winning 4-0. Pearson also struck out eight Cincinnati players.

But Faithful Cincinnati Fans Haven't Given Up Hopes Yet

By FRITZ HOWELL

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.—Cincinnati's Reds, their pair of pitching aces beaten by a flush of Yankee clubs in the first two games of the world series, come home today.

The prides of the Buckeye Rhineland had a day of leisure before them, and they hoped the layoff would bring an end to those white spots which have been dancing before their eyes before plopping into the catching mitt of Bill Dickey.

The gloom that pervaded Mudville the day the mighty Casey struck out was a bright and shining light compared to the pall that hung over this Ohio river metropolis as fans surveyed the task the Reds had before them.

"We had a chance to beat 'em in four out of seven," was the consensus of the boys in the taverns, hotel lobbies and on the street corners. "But can we beat 'em in four of the next five?"

Won't Give Up

One veteran fan voiced his reaction to the two straight setbacks with: "I waited 20 years for the Reds to get into another world series, and I haven't given up, but it looks tougher and tougher, and that center field fence isn't going to make it any easier for our boys. Some of those fly balls that Craft caught at the Yankee stadium would go for homers here."

"We've come from behind before," Manager Bill McKeech said after yesterday's game, "and we'll do it again. We haven't lost this series yet, and I don't think we will."

The fans have strung along with the dour Deacon all year without being disappointed, and most of them are willing to wait for tomorrow's result before tossing in the sponge.

Standing room only sales for the Saturday and Sunday games took a decided drop, and some of the ticket "brokers" were rumored trying to get back a part of the license fees they've already paid.

Fans arranged a parade through the business section for the Red-legged team, returning bloody but unvanquished. The Yanks scheduled a noon workout at Crosley field.

Louisville Takes Minor Loop Title

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 6.—It took a long time, but the Louisville Colonels of the American Association are baseball's little world champions for 1939.

After a series of postponements, the Colonels battled their International league rivals, the Rochester Red Wings, 11 innings last night before winning, four games to three.

Louisville, managed by Bill Burwell who pitched Indianapolis to a little world series triumph over Rochester 10 years ago, scored four runs in the eleventh inning to gain their 7 to 3 verdict. The winning runs came off Roy Henshaw and Mike Ryba.

Lee Vs. Lee Today In Chicago Series

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—It was Lee vs. Lee today as Chicago's Cubs and the White Sox shifted the scene of their city series to Wrigley field all square after two games at Comiskey park.

Bill Lee was on the firing line for the National league Cubs and Thornton Lee carried on for the American league Sox, who won yesterday, 9 to 2.

VARNVILLE, S. C.—A fire in a small grocery here was extinguished when soda pop bottles were heated by the blaze, the tops popped off and the liquid squirted out. The first thing the owner knew of the blaze was the next morning when he opened the store, found the burned place and the floor wet with soda pop.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 6.—While the Reds and the Yankees are heading for the Buckeye Rhineland for tomorrow's third game of the World Series, let's take a look around at the other sports happenings in the Ohio realm.

It's getting to the place where even the High school bands must have reserves on the bench. The other night, as London High school band, Greenfield 9 to 6 (the first loss "Red" Armstrong's boys have suffered in two years) the Greenfield band was parading between halves. One of the horn-toters fainted, and the band broke ranks and gathered around him.

Director Maurice King rushed to

And it seems, fighters and wrestlers are not the only ones forced to "make weight" for championship contests.

Hubert Baldwin of Leesburg, had his team of horses entered in the world's lightweight pulling championship Sunday at Troy. When the teams weighed in, the Leesburg farmer's pair was 30 pounds overweight. So Baldwin wrapped blankets around his horses, and forced them to do several miles of running. He "sweated" 30 pounds off the pair, and then drove them to the lightweight championship of the world. Baldwin "ran 'em and weighed 'em" four times before getting down to the 3000-pound limit.

Three members of Ohio State's football team, Fullback Johnny Rabb, Center Claude White, and Fullback Tommy Welbaum, are married.

Ohio State had blanketed Purdue five times in a row up to last year when the Boilermakers won 12 to 0, and Buckeye fans are just as well satisfied that the Hoosier hot-shots are not on the slate this year.... That elevator Ohio State has planned for five years to build to the mile-high stadium press box hasn't been constructed yet, but the scribes are hopeful.... Carl Grate of Greenfield, who scored 145 points to finish second in the state high school scoring parade last year, sends word back from Athens, Ga., where he's a Freshman at Georgia university, that there's no danger he'll be hurt in football there—"I'm the biggest guy around here," Grate declared.... It looks as if rival coaches weren't kidding when they said "Doc" Spears at Toledo university had the greatest batch of grid material ever assembled on an Ohio minor college gridiron.

Similar programs involving construction of new dial exchanges in Lisbon and Columbiana were recently announced. In Lisbon, expenditures for the new system will approximate $63,000, while those in Columbiana will run about $56,000. In connection with the changes in the three communities, it will be necessary to place a new overhead long distance cable from Salem to Columbiana and from Columbiana to East Palestine and Lisbon. This part of the project will cost about $135,000 and will provide increased facilities for calls between East Palestine, Lisbon, Columbiana and Salem.

SYDNEY, Australia — With the installation of a cable now being laid between Sydney and Maitland, 117 miles away, Australia will have written a new chapter in telephone history. The cable will carry 17 independent conversations simultaneously.

By HERBERT W. BARKER

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Applying an old golf axiom to football, this guesser will proceed to "miss 'em quick":

Holy Cross-Louisiana State: The tales that come out of Worcester about Holy Cross' strength absolutely curl your hair. L. S. U. will be no push-over but we'll take Holy Cross.

Notre Dame-Georgia Tech: The Ramblers weren't exactly a ball of fire against Purdue but the talent and the man-power is there. Notre Dame.

Fordham on Coin: By the toss of a coin Fordham is the choice. Yale-Columbia: Tulane.

Tulane-Auburn: Tulane. California-St. Mary's: St. Mary's. Cornell-Syracuse: A flur on Cornell.

Duke-Colgate: Even had Colgate not taken a bad physical beating at the hands of New York university last week, the choice would be Duke.

Army-Centre: Army, handily. Navy-Virginia: Navy. Iowa-Indiana: A sheer guess Iowa.

Nebraska-Minnesota: The Huskers didn't seem to have much of an attack against Indiana and the choice is Minnesota.

Wisconsin-Texas: Foggily, Wisconsin. Watch Out Ohio: Ohio State-Missouri: Picking up where he left off last year, Paul Christman makes Missouri dangerous but Ohio State gets the nod.

Michigan-Michigan State: Vanderbilt-Kentucky: Out of the hat, Vanderbilt.

Florida-Mississippi State: State. Tennessee-Sewanee: No contest. Tennessee.

Washington & Lee-Richmond: A timid nod to Richmond. Virginia Military-Davidson: Like-wise to V. M. I.

Oklahoma A. and M.-Baylor: Baylor. Kansas-Iowa State: Iowa State.

Arkansas-Texas Christian: Like T. C. U. but not by much. Rice-Centenary: Rice.

Pitt-West Virginia: Taking Pitt. Oregon-Stanford: Oregon. Washington-U. C. L. A.: aking U. C. L. A.

DALLAS, Tex. — Buddy Scott, 175½, Dallas, outpointed Tony Musto, 206, Chicago, (10).

LUBBOCK, Tex. — Buddy Baer, 248, Sacramento, Calif., knocked out Sandy McDonald, 215, Dallas, (2).

Fordham hopes to out-speed and beat Alabama tomorrow by getting the brilliant Len Eshmont away at least once.... Last year Eshmont gained more than 800 yards.... This year he has set his goal at 1,000 yards.

Unbeaten College Elevens To Clash

CLEVELAND, Oct. 6.—Four unbeaten Ohio college teams clash today in top attractions of the state's nine-game schedule. Fourteen Buckeye squads see action.

Battling to stay in the winner class, Ohio Northern travels to Denison and Heidelberg goes to Kent State.

Other games are Cincinnati at Dayton, Tennessee Tech at Xavier, Defiance at Ashland, Bluffton at Findlay, Fairmont (W. Va.) at Marietta, St. Francis (Pa.) at Youngstown, and Rio Grande at Georgetown.

All are night games except the Kent and Rio Grande contests.

PHOENIX, Ariz. — The Arizona National Guard hopes to increase its enlistment by 20 per cent as Arizona's part to help bolster national defense forces. The personnel now numbers 1,234.

That grueling National league finish is bound to have taken a lot out of the Reds.... They looked and played like a tired ball club yesterday.... Want to know what's become of "Piggy" Barnes, the West Virginia school sensation, who visited the Alabama and other campuses recently? Well, he's raising all kinds of Cain with the L. S. U. freshmen.... Among the old familiar faces which may be missing in Pittsburgh next season are those of the Messrs. Arky Vaughan, both Wagners, Cy Blanton, Russ Bauers, Floyd Young and Johnny Rizzo.

Fordham hopes to out-speed and beat Alabama tomorrow by getting the brilliant Len Eshmont away at least once.... Last year Eshmont gained more than 800 yards.... This year he has set his goal at 1,000 yards.

UNBEATEN FOOTBALL RIVALS CLASH TONIGHT

CINCY KEEPS UP SPIRIT DESPITE SERIES LOSSES

Reds Show Courage by Insisting to Yankees: "We'll Be Back"

BY GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The Cincinnati Reds are a brave lot of boys when they left here last night bound for home and a rematch of the World Series against the Yankees tomorrow, they were yelling belligerently: "We'll be back."

A full appreciation of this stout-hearted, devil-may-care attitude toward the National League champions can be had only by the 12,000 who sat in Yankee stadium for the past two afternoons and watched the lads from the west absorb two of the cruelest beatings ever dealt out by the Yankees to any other club.

Beaten by Red Ruffing, 2 to 1, in the opener, and shut out by Monte Pearson's marvelous two-hit pitching yesterday, 4 to 0, the Reds tonight have been forgiven had they refused to continue the classic and they were given a head-start of, say, three runs per game.

McKeechne Speaks

But in their dressing room and on the cars last night they were saying "we'll be back!"—and Manager Bill McKeechne was railing: "Nobody can tell me we are as good as a ball club as we've looked the last two days. Tell 'em we're coming home with our heads up."

At that, the Reds cannot be quite that bad, even granting that they were up against almost phenomenal pitching. Few clubs, in any kind of series, ever were mowed down so mercilessly as they have been for two days.

In the games they have made six hits, all singles. Only one Red, Ival Goodman, has reached second base, and he scored their lone run in the first game after drawing a walk.

When Ernie Lombardi plunked his single to center in the eighth yesterday he broke a string of 12 consecutive innings in which the Reds had failed to scratch any sort of a hit and had been retired in order by Ruffing and Pearson.

The crowded stadium was pulling for Pearson to get his no-hitter when Lombardi caught an outside curve squarely on the nose and shot it over second base. After the spell had been broken, it didn't matter so much that Bill Werber touched another hit after two were out in the ninth. Pearson, the 30-year-old veteran from Oakland, Calif., had pitched one of the classic games of World Series history.

Fast Ball Effective

The Reds said it was his fast ball, rather than his sweeping curve, that baffled them. He struck out eight. Center fielder Harry Craft swung down three times swinging from his heels. For one remarkable head, through the fourth, fifth and sixth innings, Pearson struck out four batters and tossed three others out at first. On only two plays did he accept a little help from his infield.

Bucky Walters, like Paul Derringer before him, turned in a good job of chunking for the Reds. Of the nine hits pounded by the Reds, five came in one big frame, the third. The Yankees were set down in order for the last three innings. Walters struck out first and made only one serious mistake—the fast ball that Babe Dahlgren whipped into the left-field stands in the fourth inning.

It is just like the Yankees that the weakest hitting regular on their side, Dahlgren, should have been the batting hero of the first two games. In six official times up he has blasted a home run and two doubles, a record that even Lou Gehrig, the man he succeeded at first base, might not have bettered. He drove across the Yankees' tying run in the opening game, scored their first run yesterday after doubling to open the third frame and then hit his four-bagger in the fourth.

Lakers To Face Alliance Champs

Accepting a challenge issued by Alliance Sunset Parks, Lake Placid, Minn., a semi-pro baseball team will meet the Sunset nine in a post-season game at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the lake diamond.

The Parks, city champion in Alliance for the last two years, were scheduled to face the Lakers last Sunday, but the game was called on account of rain. The Alliance team immediately challenged Placid to another game.

Willis Schopfer is slated to pitch for the Lakers. He will be opposed by Phillip, the Sunset Park pitching ace, who has won 11 straight games.

As Pearson Pitched Way To Series Fame

Here's Monte Pearson, New York Yankee pitcher, winding up and delivering to a Cincinnati Reds batter that tricky pitch of his which held the Cincinnati Reds hitless for seven innings in the second game of the 1939 world series, played in Yankee stadium, New York. Pearson held the Reds to two hits, the Yankees winning 4-0. Pearson also struck out eight Cincinnati players.

Director Maurice King rushed to the sidelines, whispered to a substitute cornetist, and then dashed back to his fallen gladiator. The substitute marched all alone up and down the sideline, blowing a few "warm-up" "toots." Then he walked into the formation, took the place of the disabled youth, and the band marched away as stretcher-bearers carted the "victim" from the field.

And, it seems, fighters and wrestlers are not the only ones forced to "make weight" for championship contests.

EAST PALESTINE TO HAVE DIALS

Service To Be Installed Sometime In 1941; Purchase Property From Catholic Church

East Palestine is to have dial telephone service sometime in 1941.

Details of an improvement program to furnish this community with the latest type of telephone system were announced here today by Carl F. Willman, commercial manager for The Ohio Bell Telephone company.

The project involves construction of a new dial central office at Walnut and Clark streets on property now occupied by Our Lady of Lourdes church. The property is being purchased by the Ohio Bell from the Catholic diocese through Rev. Jos. M. Heid. The lot has a frontage of 45 feet and a depth of 145 feet. The Ohio Bell will not take possession until the new Church of Our Lady of Lourdes is completed and the old edifice abandoned for removal.

Total cost of the program will approximate $61,000, which includes $9,500 for land and the new building, $35,400 for dial central office equipment in the building, $13,600 for new dial telephones and cost of installation, and $2,500 for rearrangements and improvements to the outside plant in East Palestine.

Similar programs involving construction of new dial exchanges in Lisbon and Columbiana were recently announced. In Lisbon, expenditures for the new system will approximate $63,000, while those in Columbiana will run about $56,000. In connection with the changes in the three communities, it will be necessary to place a new overhead long distance cable from Salem to Columbiana, and from Columbiana to East Palestine and Lisbon. Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

By EDDIE BRIETZ
CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.—One of the Pittsburgh scribes summed it up nicely. . . . He said: "The Pirates were smart last year—they didn't want to play the Yankees." . . . Attention, Yalers: Two New Haven boys—Franny Lee and Charlie Spreyer, halfback and fullback—start for Harvard against Bates tomorrow and expect to be in there against you later. . . . And you needing backs so. . . . If you were around Detroit when Mickey Cochrane's Tigers were winning pennants you have an idea of the baseball fever raging in this town. . . . Cornell has a brand new shift all ready for Syracuse tomorrow and expects to win by two touchdowns.

That gruelling National league finish is bound to have taken a lot out of the Reds. . . . They looked and played like a tired ball club yesterday. . . . Want to know what's become of "Piggy" Barnes, the West Virginia school sensation, who visited the Alabama and other campuses recently? Well, he's raising all kinds of Cain with the L. S. U. freshmen. . . . Among the old familiar faces which may be missing in Pittsburgh next season are those of the Messrs. Arky Vaughan, both Waners, Cy Blanton, Russ Bauers, Floyd Young and Johnny Rizzo.

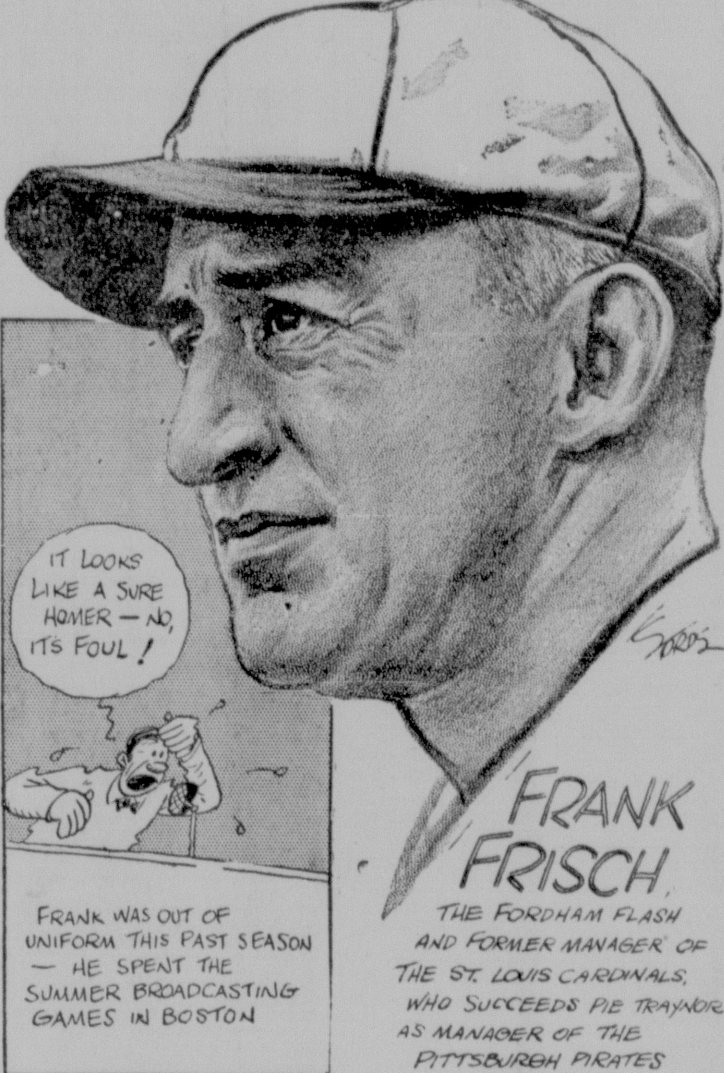

Fordham hopes to out-speed and beat Alabama tomorrow by getting the brilliant Len Eshmont away at least once. . . . Last year Eshmont gained more than 800 yards. This year he has set his goal at 1,000 yards.

Winner in the last four games between the teams, the Potters are favored to make it five in a row. Teams coached by Morbito, former Leona High and Carnegie Tech grid star, have never lost to Salem. Leading the two unbeaten rivals in tonight's battle will be Marvin (Buster) Wukotich and Dick McGillivray. Both are line-smashing fullbacks. Wukotich, the Quakers' ace ball-toter, was the leading ground-gainer and scorer in Columbiana county last fall. McGillivray, a veteran who was switched from tackle to fullback, has been the big gun in East Liverpool's to date.

"REDHEADS ARE LUCKY"

BY VERA BROWN

CHAPTER XIII

Wish had an appointment down town and said he'd drop Jenkins and the others at the hotel. Back in the car, Handsome's high spirits seemed suddenly to have deserted him, and he was silent. The reaction had set in.

"If I could pitch every day, regular 'I'd be all right,' he remarked finally.

With a smile grimly. "You'd be burned out in a month."

"I mean about this worry, it's not knowing when you're going to work that gets me. Waiting around, hoping, watching the other guys' arms."

Mike slipped her arm inside his and squeezed it. He did not seem to realize she was there for the moment. He sat sunk in gloom.

"You need a thick steak. You're plain hungry," Mike said.

Maybe you're right, I guess I am. Well, eat at Beasler's."

Mike's eyes held a shadow. There would be no quiet there. But she did not protest when they got to the hotel.

Later, when they walked into the restaurant, it was another triumph. By the time Handsome had consumed a bowl of soup, he cheered up considerably.

"You're right as usual. I was hungry. Now let 'em bring on that steak, the best in the place!" He smiled across the table at Mike. "I'll never be as scared again. I admit I was pretty much keyed up. But I shouldn't have been. It was in the bag. From the beginning."

Before the steak came, the waiter brought Handsome a note. Mike had noticed a pretty, blonde girl across the room who had been trying hard to attract Handsome's attention. Mike had yet to learn that her presence made absolutely no difference to the women who admired him.

Casually Handsome read the slip of paper. Then he grinned, threw it over to Mike with, "Women are nuts!"

Mike was distinctly uncomfortable for she knew quite well the writer of the note was watching. The note contained the girl's telephone number with a plea to call her later in the evening. "When you are free," the note said. Handsome ignored the note's existence.

"I was scared when I thought you weren't going to be out there," Mike, he continued. "But I could not lose." He reached in his pocket and planked three pennies on the table. "They're my lucky pennies. Know where I got 'em?" Mike shook her head. "They're part of the change from that two dollars you gave me the night I met you."

"Met me?" Mike was laughing now, laughing with relief, the cramped little note between them.

"Well, wouldn't you call it a meeting?" Handsome countered. "See, I punched a hole in 'em. Afraid I'd lose 'em. So you see I shouldn't have been nervous. I can't lose with them . . . and you watching. Wouldn't pitch without them in my uniform." He leaned across the table and put the pennies carefully back in his pocket.

"You think it's silly. Maybe it is, but they're part of the good luck you brought me. Skipper. I've never doubted that for a minute. Have you?"

"No," said Mike, and her eyes sparkled with utter and complete happiness.

Handsome did not pitch again while the team was in town. On the first of June, New York left for his first western trip and, until Handsome had gone, Mike did not realize what his going would mean to her.

He had come to be her whole life. She lived only when she was with him or thinking of him. She was appalled by the force of her feeling. She had said good-bye to him the night before he left town for the team was going straight from the ball park to the railroad station, and Mike did not want to see him off.

Then she went home to a sleepless night. The thought of the next fifteen days with Handsome away was more than she could endure. She tried to argue herself into some semblance of reasonableness, but she was in a panic at the thought of his being away from her. No amount of self-disparagement could bring her to a sensible view of the matter.

"Is it always going to be like this?"

Handsome, however, faced their first separation with a mingled feeling of annoyance and regret, in which annoyance was by far the stronger.

"I wish we could get married right now. Then you could come along I need you. There's no use in my trying to pitch when you're not in the grand stand. I can't do it," he said that last night.

Mike tried to laugh him out of such an absurd idea. But Handsome persisted. "I talked to Ace today. I thought he might send you along."

"You shouldn't have done that," Mike said. "Well, he wants me to pitch doesn't he?"

"Of course. So do I," Mike watched his petulant face. "Darling, what difference does it make? You have the lucky pennies."

Handsome thought for a little. "Yes, that might work. Well see."

He was quite solemn about it all. Mike's heart ached. He wanted her along, not because he'd miss her. Not because he loved her so much. But because he thought she was lucky!

She bit her lips to keep back a sharp retort. It was like arguing with a child. "The lucky pennies are almost as good as I am," she continued hiding the hurt.

"Maybe, but I don't think so."

However, later in the Shannon parlor, he kissed her good-bye, held her close in his arms.

"Darling, I'll miss you too. How am I going to get along without you?"

"Marvelously!" She forced herself to smile, although she clung to him desperately. "Think of the chance ahead for you. When I come back will you wear my ring?"

"Of course, darling. Now you must go. It's almost eleven and you've promised to be in early." And she gave him all kinds of instructions about his food, sleep and write to me, darling."

"Of course, I will. There won't be anything else to do evenings. He gave her a schedule so her letters could reach him on time at the western cities. "Be sure you get your letters mailed early enough to get in ahead of me," he instructed. "I'm going to need them." Then he left her to her own misgivings.

The days with Handsome away passed more quickly than Mike had thought possible. Each night going home she got the late editions of the papers to check the day's game. Each morning she got up early eager for further newspaper reports. And for Handsome's letters. They came to the hotel. They were just notes, told her little. He was not a good letter writer. But she was grateful for them, read them over and over.

Meticulously, he remembered to send post cards to Jimmie. That touched her. Even when there was no letter for her, Handsome remembered the sick boy. It was clear from the notes, however, that Handsome was pretty gloomy about things. His record on the road was a decided disappointment to Ace Barnes. The sports writers devoted a lot of space to Handsome's "flattening out." Mike wrote him long letters every night, tried to shake him out of his lethargy. But Handsome could discuss nothing but getting back to New York and to Mike.

"There's no use. My luck won't change until I get back to you. I've told Ace that."

It was while Handsome was out of town that first time that Mike got a letter from his mother. With the arrival of that carefully penned letter, Mike felt for the first time a security. She was going to marry Handsome. Something in the woman's sincere writing gave reality to Mike's romance.

"He does love me. Why am I such a fool?" he wondered as he reread the clearly written pages. She felt now she knew Handsome's mother well and she spent a long time over the answer she sent back to Mrs. Regan out in Charlotte, Michigan. She could visualize the little town the Regan home, one of the nicest in the village.

Mrs. Regan asked Mike to come out west when the baseball season was over. Handsome's parents had accepted the girl without question, and Mike was touched and grateful. She took out her engagement ring often to look at it. But even yet she did not quite have the courage to put it on. Why she felt so, she could not say. Certainly at that time she had no conception of what would happen when the news was out.

"REDHEADS ARE LUCKY"

BY VERA BROWN

CHAPTER XIII.

Wish had an appointment down town and said he'd drop Jenkins and the others at the hotel. Back in the car, Handsome's high spirits seemed suddenly to have deserted him, and he was silent. The reaction had set in.

"If I could pitch every day, regular, I'd be all right," he remarked finally.

Wish smiled grimly. "You'd be burned out in a month."

"I mean about this worry. It's not knowing when you're going to get that sets me. Waiting around, hoping, watching the other guys' arms."

Mike slipped her arm inside his and squeezed it. He did not seem to realize she was there for the moment. He sat sunk in gloom.

"You need a thick steak. You're plain hungry," Mike said.

"Maybe you're right. I guess I am. We'll eat at Bessner's."

Mike's eyes held a shadow. There would be no quiet there. But she did not protest when they got to the hotel.

Later, when they walked into the restaurant, it was another triumph. By the time Handsome had consumed a bowl of soup, he cheered up considerably.

"You're right as usual. I was hungry. Now let 'em bring on that steak, the best in the place!" He smiled across the table at Mike. "I'll never be as scared again. I admit I was pretty much keyed up. But I shouldn't have been. It was in the bag. From the beginning."

Before the steak came, the waiter brought Handsome a note. Mike had noticed a pretty, blonde girl across the room who had been trying hard to attract Handsome's attention. Mike had yet to learn that her presence made absolutely no difference to the women who admired him.

Casualty Handsome read the slip of paper. Then he grinned, threw it over to Mike with, "Women are nuts!"

Mike was distinctly uncomfortable for she knew quite well the writer of the note was watching. The note contained the girl's telephone number with a plea to call her later in the evening. "When you are free," the note said. Handsome ignored the note's existence.

"I was scared when I thought you weren't going to be out there," Mike, he continued. "But I could not lose." He reached in his pocket and planked three pennies on the table. "They're my lucky pennies. Know where I got 'em?" Mike shook her head. "They're part of the good luck you brought me. Skipper. I've never doubted that for a minute. Have you?"

"No," said Mike, and her eyes sparkled with utter and complete happiness.

Handsome did not pitch again while the team was in town. On the first of June, New York left for its first western trip and, until Handsome had gone, Mike did not realize what his going would mean to her.

He had come to be her whole life. She lived only when she was with him, or thinking of him. She was appalled by the force of her feeling. She had said good-bye to him the night before he left town, for the team was going straight from the ball park to the railroad station, and Mike did not want to see him off.

Then she went home to a sleepless night. The thought of the next fifteen days with Handsome away was more than she could endure. She tried to argue herself into some semblance of reasonableness, but she was in a panic at the thought of his being away from her. No amount of self-disparagement could bring her to a sensible view of the matter.

"Is it always going to be like this?"

Handsome, however, faced their first separation with a mingled feeling of annoyance and regret, in which annoyance was by far the stronger.

"I wish we could get married right now. Then you could come along. I need you. There's no use in my trying to pitch when you're not in the grand stand. I can't do it," he said that last night.

Mike tried to laugh him out of such an absurd idea. But Handsome persisted. "I talked to Ace today. I thought he might send you along."

They're my lucky pennies," said Handsome. "I got 'em?" Mike shook her head, puzzled.

now, laughing with relief, the crumpled little note between them.

"Well, wouldn't you call it a meeting?" Handsome countered. "See, I punched a hole in 'em. Afraid I'd lose 'em. So you see, I shouldn't have been nervous. I can't lose with them. . . and you watching. Wouldn't pitch without them in my uniform." He leaned across the table and put the pennies carefully back in his pocket.

"You think it's silly. Maybe it is, but they're part of the good luck you brought me. Skipper. I've never doubted that for a minute. Have you?"

"No," said Mike, and her eyes sparkled with utter and complete happiness.

reality to Mike's romance.

"He does love me. Why am I such a fool?" she wondered as she reread the closely written pages. She felt now she knew Handsome's mother well and she spent a long time over the answer she sent back to Mrs. Regan out in Charlotte, Michigan. She could visualize the little town, the Regan home, one of the nicest in the village.

Mrs. Regan asked Mike to come out west when the baseball season was over. Handsome's parents had accepted the girl without question, and Mike was touched and grateful. She took out her engagement ring often to look at it. But even yet, she did not quite have the courage to put it on. Why she felt so, she could not say. Certainly at that time she had no conception of what would happen when the news was out.
